

Legacy Interview

Your Gift

You have been gifted a Legacy Interview by your company to commemorate your time with [ORGANIZATION NAME].

A Legacy Interview is the chance to video record one's life stories, values and wisdom in a private studio with an expert interviewer. This is a special opportunity to create an autobiography that can be passed down to future generations.

What is a Legacy Interview?

A Legacy Interview is a video recorded conversation designed to capture the stories, wisdom and values of a loved one so they can be passed on to the future.

The interview is guided by Vance Crowe, who will ask insightful questions; helping guests recall memories and keeps the storytelling moving forward.

The conversation is engaging, fun, serious, deep and often filled with nostalgia and laughter.

Legacy Interviews capture your voice, look and mannerisms in a way that a picture never could. Interviews can be done 1-on-1 or as a couple.

The experience of being interviewed is profound, watching it with family is joyful and having the recording feels relieving.

The Experience

You will arrive at our private recording studio in Saint Louis and be seated with something to drink as we prepare the lighting and recording equipment.

We recommend making at least 3 hours available. The experience can be done during a morning or afternoon session.

Each interview is unique and often profound. Past guests tell us the experience is “meditative” or “exhilarating”.

The Host

Vance Crowe hosts each interview. He is a perceptive conversationalist with experiences that help him relate with people from all walks of life.

Crowe has worked as a construction worker, deckhand, Peace Corps volunteer; at the World Bank and a Fortune 500 company.

Crowe grew up in rural Illinois with six siblings. He attended diplomacy school and is invited around the world to give speeches on negotiations and succession.
