

Legacy Interview Questions

Questions to get you thinking before the interview

None of the below questions are required, and we may not get to all of them, but they should provide you with conversation starters as you prepare for our interview.

Childhood

Tell me about your mother and father; where does your family come from?
What was it like growing up in your home?
What happened during your youth that changed you in an important way?
How is the world different today than in your youth?
When did you know what you wanted to be when you grew up?
What influenced that decision?
Who did you admire?

Marriage

Tell me about your wife, what makes her special?
What did you learn about yourself by being married to your husband?
When did you know that this person was a good choice as a spouse?

Parenting

What did you learn by becoming a parent?
What do you hope your children remember about their childhood?
What was a scary moment for you as a parent? What did you learn from that?
What should your children know about Work? Family? God?

Career

Why did you work as hard as you did?
What did you sacrifice to provide for your family?
Do you have regrets about your career? What vices did you lean on?
What is success in your eyes? What habits are most important to develop?

Legacy

How do you want people to remember you?
How should your friends and family pay their respects after your passing?
What do you want to live on from what you accomplished?
What life lesson was the most difficult to learn, but was the most valuable to know?